Sign Shapes at a Glance

- Octagon, red — Stop.
- Triangle, red/white, point down — Yield.
- Diamond, yellow — General warning.
- Pentagon — School zone/crossing.
- Round — Railroad crossing.
- Rectangle, white — Regulatory (speed, one-way, parking).
- Rectangle, green — Guide/direction.
- Orange — Construction/work zone.
- Blue — Motorist services.

Right-of-Way in One Breath

- Uncontrolled intersection: first to arrive goes first; simultaneous arrival, left yields to right.
- Four-way stop: same first-come rule, ties go to the right.
- Left turns: yield to oncoming traffic and pedestrians before completing the turn.
- Crosswalks: pedestrians generally have the right-of-way, marked or unmarked.
- Emergency vehicles with lights/sirens: always yield, pull right and stop when safe.
- Roundabouts: vehicles already inside have priority over those entering.

Top Traps

- Confusing yield (triangle) with a full stop — yield only requires stopping if traffic demands it.
- Assuming reduced speed zones (school/construction) only apply when workers or kids are visibly present — they don't.
- Underestimating following distance needed at night or in wet weather; 3-4 seconds is a baseline, not a maximum, and it should grow behind large trucks.
- Forgetting that fatigue impairs driving similarly to alcohol — slower reactions, drifting, poor judgment.

- Treating implied consent as optional — refusing testing when lawfully suspected of impairment carries its own separate penalty from a DUI charge.
- Assuming unlimited retakes — only two online attempts are allowed before you must retest in person, plus a $4 fee per fail.
- Braking hard during hydroplaning instead of easing off the gas, which makes losing control more likely.
- Forgetting that an unsealed alcoholic beverage in the passenger area generally violates open-container rules, even if the driver isn't drinking it.
